Danish Employee Benefits Market Overview

- In Denmark we have a well established tradition for corporate pension Schemes. A lot of companies offer a pension scheme to their employees, as a part of the salary. It covers pension contribution and insurances.
- If a company has employees subject to collective labour agreement, it will be mandatory to have a pension scheme with a set percentage of the income (typically 12%).
- If a company does not have such agreements there is no legal requirements for employers to offer pension schemes. A lot of companies however still decide to offer it to their employees in concern of attractking the best candidates to the job, and making sure that all employees have a “safety net” in case of critical illness etc.
- The market in Denmark is very competitive. Since 2022 however the government has made a regulation stating that the risk products needs to balance – and that has made some impact to the competition. We have a lot of brokers and that market is growing both in regards to new business and the ongoing portfolio management.

- The Pension scheme has to have the following: loss of earning capacity, critial illness, death, retirement contribution. And then there is to optional insurances: Health insurance and something called Health package.
